"Ya-ta-hay" is a friendly greeting in the language of the Navajo.

Not only from the Navajo but from all the Indians of the Southwest you will receive a friendly greeting to welcome you to this land of color and enchantment.

Here, against a background of desert and mountain, live various Indian tribes, similar in their general characteristics, but distinct in ceremonial, ritual, personality, and mode of life, following the traditions of generations gone by.

It is our hope that your travels will lead you to a personal acquaintance with the Indians of the Southwest and with the scenic land they dwell in — a colorful paradise served by the Santa Fe.

The scene, "Meeting of the Chiefs", reproduced on the cover of this menu is from a painting by Hernando Villa.
